The American Campus and Alcohol Conference

The goal of this conference is to provide college campuses and communities with tools to curb student alcohol abuse. With a strong partnership between colleges and universities and their surrounding communities, it is possible to address this important issue with a proactive, multi-faceted approach.

The conference brings together representatives from the alcoholic beverage industry, college campuses and the community. Each campus-community team is structured to include college and university officials, counselors, students, alcoholic beverage industry representatives, law enforcement officials and community leaders. These teams will work to develop specific, action-oriented plans to implement in their communities.
